Suggestions

Please share your suggestions for improving the curriculum or teaching–learning process:

You claim to provide quality education in marketing and advertisement, yet there's barely any real energy or effort put into practical learning and overall student growth. It's disappointing that even basic requirements like fresh parsley for practicals aren't provided, despite charging the same fees as reputed hotel management institutes where both the staff knowledge and practical exposure are far superior.

This college seems more focused on extracting money from students than actually educating them. It's shameful that you couldn't even return the full caution deposit – deducting ₹2,000 out of ₹10,000 without any valid explanation and calling it a "fine."

At the very least, hire staff who actually know the subjects they teach. My four years here have been completely wasted because of this poorly managed and unprofessional institute.

Proper communication between teachers and students are less..no entertainment programs just following some management rules
